STORM DID NOT STOP ALAMEDA

From the King street end of the roof of the Alexander Young Hotel yesterday morning and during the entire day a magnificent spectacle of the fury of the sea could be seen. A few minutes after nine o'clock the steamer Alameda plunged her way through the rough water of the harbor, out into the channel and across a bar swept by mighty and angry waters. Right off the harbor the Alameda shoved her nose into the roughest of weather and until she rounded Diamond Head could be seen bobbing up and down like a cork on the crests of the waves. Even from points on shore water could be seen breaking over her bow.

The vessel went out without a pilot. Had she had a pilot it might have been necessary for him to make the round trip to San Francisco on her as in all probability he would have been unable to leave the vessel at the usual place off the harbor.

The vessel had but few passengers to undergo the discomfort of the storm. W. A. Bryan, of the Bishop Museum, left for the coast. Robert C. Roe departed for the mainland in search of further experience in mechanical work. Mrs. P. Owens, wife of the Chief Engineer of the Alameda, and child, who have been residing at the Young Hotel for some weeks, returned to their home in San Francisco. The other departing passengers were G. H. Hellman and wife, Edward Koons, S. M. Lillie, B. T. McCullough, H. D. Smith, J. Wagner, William Walsh, Rev. H. E. Benham, E. B. De Golia and wife and Mrs. W. W. Thatcher.

VESSELS WERE WEATHERBOUND

The gasoline schooner Eclipse and the steamer Alameda were the only vessels which left Honolulu yesterday. All of the other vessels which were to have sailed remained in the harbor on account of the Kona storm and the resulting rough weather about the islands.

The Transport Sheridan was to have sailed at five o'clock yesterday afternoon for Guam and Manila but her commander, although his orders were to sail at that time, held the vessel and will not leave until six o'clock this morning and a continuance of the rough weather may hold him in port even longer.

The Inter-Island steamers, the Noeau and Waialeale were to have sailed but remained in port. The Noeau is scheduled to sail at five o'clock this afternoon for Honolulu, Kapaemahu, Lahaina, Honokaa and Kukuhaele. The Waialeale will also leave at five o'clock this afternoon for Nawiliwili, Hanalei and Ahukini with general freight and will take combustibles and explosives for any Kauai port. The J. A. Cummins was to have sailed for Waimanalo but remained in port and may go out this morning.

The steamer Niihau arrived from Kauai ports in the morning, about five hours late, after a rough trip. The steamer Kauai, which was to have sailed last night for Kauai ports, was also held in port on account of the storm.

THE BELL-BUOY IS CAPSIZED

The bell-buoy was capsized sometime after midnight yesterday morning by the terrific Kona wind. The buoy is held by its moorings and will not get loose.

CHINESE WANT THE JAPS TO WIN

Between showers in the Oriental section of Honolulu yesterday morning large numbers of Japanese congregated around the bulletin boards put up by the Japanese papers. They contained the news received by the English dailies regarding war movements in the Orient. The English newspapers were eagerly bought up by every Japanese who could read them and at an early hour yesterday morning the entire day's edition of the Advertiser had been sold.

Throughout the city the Chinese are siding with the Japs. Every Chinaman hopes that the Japs will defeat the Russians for in this way they think that the disruption of the Chinese empire can be prevented.

In a crowded store yesterday morning in Chinatown a white man laughingly remarked that the Japs would be defeated. "I think you wrong," said a Chinaman, "Japanese have big war-ships, many men. Russia be defeated. Japanese always more brave than a Russian."

LEAKING BUILDING CAUSES DAMAGES

Heavy losses were incurred from the storm by W. C. Lyon & Co., Ltd., booksellers, and G. Dietz, jeweler, on Tuesday night. Leakage in the roof and ceiling of the second floor caused great damage on the ground floor to both proprietors. The building is at Fort and Hotel streets and owned by F. W. Damon.

The Lyon book concern had recently consigned its retail stock to Arleigh & Co., which while awaiting delivery was arranged on tables and floor in the company's place of business. Its reserved stock had been removed to its new quarters upstairs. The stock that had been sold but not delivered was valued at $5000, besides which there was stock moved in by Arleigh & Co. worth $500. There was not a great deal of damage done upstairs, as the leaks were scattered and, singly, comparatively slight in volume of water admitted. Cumulating upon the floor, however, the droppings made a flood that found its way through floor and ceiling to the lower story.

For ordinary commercial purposes the Lyon and Arleigh stocks were ruined. The Lyon company is arranging to sell the entire stock at sacrifice prices.

Mr. Dietz suffered heavily in damage to instruments and stock of watches, clocks and encased goods. He estimates his loss at $1000.

Walter Beakbane, engraver, whose establishment adjoins that of Mr. Dietz, notwithstanding the delicate nature of his stock sustained but trifling loss. His paper goods happened to be out of range of the leak in the way they were disposed.

The Lyons placed a boy on watch last night to keep brushing the water off the upper floor so that it should not go through.
